TRUTHFUL STATEMENT.

A city's richest asset, greatest problem, sternest peril, mightiest force, costliest offender, strongest defender, highest hope is the YOUNG MAN. A puzzling paradox until safeguarded and anchored by Christian character. Who would not give strenuously to prevent what he would give a thousand worlds to cure?

PENSION THE INDIAN FIGHTERS.

Certainly, the Indian fighters should be pensioned. The men who held the frontier against the red savages are as deserving of national gratitude as the men who fought in distant climes or at home against more civilized enemies. The Indian fighters gave Uncle Sam an empire which is the backbone of the nation today. They gave effort and health and very often life in a contest in which there was no glory but merely grim sacrifice. Many of them turned from a career which would have brought them wealth or fame, or at least a comfortable competence, to march against the Indians who wanted to throw back the advancing lines of civilization or desired to raid the settlements, and murder their peaceful inhabitants, including women and children. New Mexico writhed many years under outbreaks of Indian atrocity and sent hundreds of brave pioneers to the front to aid in the long and sanguinary conflict that finally broke and conquered the Apaches, the Navajos, and the other tribes whose very name still strikes terror into the hearts of old men who lived on the frontier. It is one thing to march to battle with flags flying, bands playing and the multitude shouting approval or praying for victory, and it is another thing to deploy in waterless, mountainous wilds without banners or martial music, to be shot at from ambush and to run across comrades horribly mutilated by fiendish savages or upon settlements in which men, women and children were murdered cruelly or with death waiting behind every rock or bush. But the reward and glory of the one is as great as the other, and the least that Uncle Sam can do is to pension the old Indian fighters in their declining days.—New Mexican.

North Dakota is credited with a senator who makes such a rambling speech that nobody can understand it. Senator Stone should look to his laurels as an expositor of Persian finance.

New England, where the ice sometimes freezes several feet thick, makes the loudest complaint about the ice trust. Probably it would pay even Canada to get its supply of ice from the factories.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

Gus Lehmann has leased a vacant business lot on Railroad avenue, immediately adjoining Bacharach Bros. and will erect a building thereon for restaurant purposes. He has secured the ground privilege for a term of five years.

Romualdo Martinez died at his family apartments on National avenue near the river bridge yesterday afternoon, aged 72 years. The body was taken to Los Alamos today for burial. Deceased is survived by a wife and large family and was well-to-do in worldly goods.

Captain J. A. Ross of this city, says that he has the only sure means of killing dandelions and advises all who are troubled with this lawn pest to try his remedy. He has a machinist's squirt can, and he puts gasoline on every plant. It goes clear to the roots and absolutely kills the plant for all time. The plant shrivels up and dies within three days. He says that he does not use a half teaspoonful and that although probably a very small spot of grass will be killed, it grows over in a remarkably short time.

Samuel S. Ground has been appointed administrator of Alta, Carol and Myrtle Blake, aged 14, 12 and 10 years respectively. They are the children of Frank Blake, who is said to have deserted them. The mother, Mrs. Ida M. Blake, died in Denver, some years ago.

Max Levy, who was formerly engaged in the brokerage business in this city and Albuquerque, and who later went to Denver, where he is now conducting similar business in partnership with his brother, has announced his engagement to Miss Grace Kayser, a prominent society belle of Denver.

The seventh and eighth grades of the Normal university will give a musical and dramatic recital at the building tomorrow night, to which the general public is cordially invited. The program will end with a short play taken from Irving's Legend of Sleepy Hollow. The entertainment promises to be an excellent one.

Thomas Seward, an Albuquerque insurance agent who visited Las Vegas regularly in former years, has just been given a farewell banquet by brother underwriters at the Alvarado hotel in that city. Mr. Seward soon leaves for Spokane, Wash., where he will continue to act as state manager for the Mutual Benefit company. He is simply transferred to other territory.

The Agua Pura company has not yet completed all the improvements in hand and still has others under contemplation. Two-inch mesh wire, seven feet high, is now being erected entirely around its reservoir, preventing any access whatever to the water. The gates being constantly kept locked. The fence posts of the 49-acre enclosure for reservoir grounds are being whitewashed and a new tool house will be erected in this reservation, facing on Hot Springs boulevard.

Prof. G. A. Overstrom, of the chair of mining and milling at the Utah state school of mines in Salt Lake City, and Prof. R. H. Bradford, of the chair of metallurgy of that institution, passed through for Old Mexico, this afternoon in a special car, accompanied by nineteen students. The party is out seeing things practically and will visit Arizona mining camps before returning home by way of Seattle.

Hiding Place for Loot.

Tomas Maze, the negro who was brought to Las Vegas by Will Boylan from La Gaita ranch and bound over to await the action of the grand jury in the sum of $1,000, charged with carrying deadly weapons and making threats, unbothered himself to Boylan on the road to this city. He stated that all property that had been stolen in El Cuervo country, consisting of guns, blankets, provisions, etc., has been secreted in a cave in Pino canyon.

Of course, an effort to locate this hiding place for loot and plunder will be made by officers of the law. Stranger things have come to pass than that Sheriff Romero will himself run down the rumor while visiting his ranch in that immediate section of country.

Wild Wolf Skins.

Manuel Salazar this week brought to the Browne & Manzaneros Co.'s establishment in East Las Vegas from the town of San Miguel, the skin of a lobo wolf, also the skins of twelve puppies.

The mother was shot, but the puppies were punched out of a cave and clubbed to death. The thirteenth puppy was captured alive and is now being fed and tamed in a sheep camp down the country.

The bounty Mr. Salazar should receive for these skins is $260, besides the purchase price which was given into his hands.

Killed in Auto Accident.

Salina, Kan., May 13.—A. P. Riddle, lieutenant governor of Kansas from 1884 to '89, was killed today in an automobile accident, between here and Minneapolis, Kan. The machine struck an embankment, throwing the occupants into a ditch. Riddle lived an hour.
